

Tony Hoskinson

Master

The Worshipful Company of Barbers

Tony Hoskinson was born in 1949 and brought up and educated in Liverpool, culminating in reading Dentistry at Liverpool University, qualifying in 1972. Following a short service commission in the Royal Air Force, he went into general practice with his wife Sue on the Wirral, before moving to London for specialist training in 1981. He practised as an endodontist (root canal specialist) first in London and then in his home village of Great Missenden in Buckinghamshire for thirty-five years before his retirement in 2017.

He was a part-time senior clinical lecturer at the University of London Eastman Dental Institute for many years and had the opportunity to lecture all over the world and see places he would never have visited otherwise.

He became very involved in his speciality organisations, culminating in the presidency of the British, European and International endodontic societies.

Tony has been married to Sue, another retired endodontist, for forty-four years and they have two daughters, Sarah, a partner in a law firm in Bristol, and Jo who still lives with them in a small village north of Aylesbury in Bucks. He played rugby and cricket, nowadays an enthusiastic spectator; he still plays golf and is heavily involved in restoring and driving classic cars, including regular tours of the UK and the Continent – fortunately Sue enjoys old cars as well.