

Alderman Peter Estlin

Peter is a senior banker with over twenty years' experience with Barclays and Citigroup in London, New York, Hong Kong and Singapore. He trained as a Chartered Accountant, becoming a partner with Coopers & Lybrand in 1993 before joining Salomon Brothers Asia, as regional CFO. Following a series of acquisitions and mergers he then served as CFO for Citigroup's Investment and Corporate Banking divisions in New York and London. He led the recovery of Citigroup's banking operations in the immediate aftermath of 9/11, helping to stabilise the US banking system in a time of great turbulence. Peter joined Barclays in 2008 as Group Financial Controller and has been CFO of the Retail & Business Banking and Non-Core divisions as well as Acting Group CFO. He is currently Barclay's Senior Advisor in London. Over the past 15 years he has set up and overseen banking and finance operations in India and South Africa. Peter serves on the Audit Committee of HM Treasury and was latterly a Commissioner of the London Fairness Commission and Chairman of the British Airways International Advisory Board. He is actively involved with several education and financial inclusion charities, mainly in the UK, Africa and Asia. He was born in Portsmouth to a Royal Naval family and was educated at King Edward's Witley and the University of Bristol, where he currently serves on the Ethics Committee.

Peter served as Aldermanic Sheriff 2016/17 and as the 17th Master of the Worshipful Company of International Bankers 2017/18. On 1st October 2018 he was elected to be the next Lord Mayor of the City of London.
